

The clinging woman By Ruth Rendell {site_link} Barbara Vine Ruth Barbara Rendell Baroness Rendell of Babergh CBE who also wrote under the pseudonym {site_link} Barbara Vine was an acclaimed English crime writer known for her many psychological thrillers and murder mysteries and above all for Inspector Wexford. {site_link} Barbara Vine Ruth Barbara Rendell Baroness Rendell of Babergh CBE who also wrote under the pseudonym {site_link} Barbara Vine was an acclaimed English crime writer known for her many psychological thrillers and murder mysteries and above all for Inspector Wexford: The clinging woman A shocking story about why people suffer in love, It reminded me of a quote from Kafka: You are the knife I turn inside myself; that is love[1]

A.K.A. A.K.A. {site_link} Short story. Very intense story thriller and mystery included. The clinging woman I enjoyed this story I lot. A little bit depressive but it was great. That my dear is love. The clinging woman Good The clinging woman.