I've admired Carson McCullers ever since I read my first book of hers The Ballad of the Sad Café (and other stories) four years ago in 2016. Book The Mortgaged heart rate The romantic and innocent sadness ugliness and loneliness of the characters in her work had an immediate impact on me from the very first page and they keep being one of the main things I love in McCullers' work - the way she portrays the obsessions fears and hopes of her characters and the strong emotions they feel. EPub The Mortgaged hearts card The short stories added in chronological order perfectly show the change in her style - from the fresh and uncertain new voice in Sucker to the already established and confident heartbreaker that is The Haunted Boy (my favourite from this collection) this book maps out McCuller's growth as a writer. Book The Mortgaged heart rate Another invaluable piece included here was McCuller's outline of her most famous novel The Heart is a Lonely Hunter - I enjoyed this piece of inside knowledge so much that I sincerely started hoping that such outlines would be published with each and every book! While I also loved her autobiographical pieces on her experience during World War II and her childhood memories of Christmas I was probably a bit underwhelmed by her literary criticism pieces and her poetry though I blame this on the fact that I rushed my way through this final part of the book and read too much all at once which is something I would recommend not doing to future readers of this collection. Fiction The Mortgaged heart Paperback Favourites Fiction: Like That Wunderkind The Aliens The Haunted Boy Who Has Seen the Wind Nonfiction- Authors outline of the mute Look Homeward Americans The Russian Realists and Southern Literature Isak Dinesen In Praise of Radiance Paperback One of America's finest writers Paperback It has taken me thirteen years to read this masterwork of short stories essays poetry and outlines by one of the 20th century's most gifted writers. Poetry The Mortgaged heart rate "If a person admires you a lot you despise him and don't care—and it is the person who doesn't notice you that you are apt to admire" "Writing is a wandering dreaming occupation" "How can you create a character without love and the struggle that goes with love?" Paperback.
