

Operation Lightning Pegasus By Alick Rowe In addition to his radio plays he scripted television programmes including Up School (1970) The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (1978) Two People (1979) Claire (1982) Morgans Boy (1984) A Sort of Innocence (1987) and season one of the BBC sci fi series The Tripods. His published books include Boy at the Commercial a portrait of life at a pub in Hereford where he lived for the first sixteen years of his life Morgan's Boy Voices of Danger The Panic Wall Trapped Derek Dungbeetle in Paradise and Derek Dungbeetle and the Lost Lover: He died on October 30th 2009 in Chiang Mai Thailand of a suspected heart attack: He was head boy at Hereford Cathedral School before graduating from St. From the early 1970s onwards he wrote prolifically for radio and television, His BBC radio plays include Crisp and Even Brightly (a comedic retelling of the Good King Wenceslas story) and Operation Lightning Pegasus (about the siege of Troy). He died on October 30th 2009 in Chiang Mai Thailand of a suspected heart attack: He was head boy at Hereford Cathedral School before graduating from St: From the early 1970s onwards he wrote prolifically for radio and television. His BBC radio plays include Crisp and Even Brightly (a comedic retelling of the Good King Wenceslas story) and Operation Lightning Pegasus (about the siege of Troy), In 1999 he pleaded guilty to child indecency and was jailed for a year: {site_link} Operation Lightning Pegasus This was wonderful - had me crying with laughter: Operation Lightning Pegasus Alick Rowe's comic spin on events inside the Trojan Horse during the siege of Troy, Operation Lightning Pegasus Bettie's Books Operation Lightning Pegasus

[1]

Alick Rowe was a British writer born in 1939. Catharines College Cambridge. Catharine's College Cambridge. He won a BAFTA award in 1992. Stars Timothy West and Joy Harrison